Roosevelt's Jetty, 24 x 48, oil on linen, $20,000

Having lived my entire life on an island, it should come as no surprise that I have spent countless hours painting water. There is endless inspiration to be found around us if we take the time to look. The textures and colors vary by season and time of day, waiting to be captured on my canvas and shared with my viewers.

Without hype or pretentiousness, they are visual poems of quiet and serenity that I hope will provide some respite in a crazy world.

This summer I celebrate my 26th year as a full time painter. Shown here are some of my favorite scenes for you to ponder.

Front Cover: Dressing Ship, 21 x 28, oil on linen, $8,000
